

SAVE THE DATE!

January 29, 2014
Oakland, California

Training for Landscape Architects & Engineers

Compost as a Tool for Storm Water Management, Erosion Control and Low Impact Development

Public and Private clients request and require 'green' techniques for storm water management, erosion control, and reduction of water consumption. Attendees will learn about the newest trends and cost effective techniques.

Date: January 29, 2014

Time: 9:00 am to 12:30 pm

Location: Marriot Oakland City Center

Cost: $25/person. Reserve a seat now at <http://www.cvent.com/d/q4qjyz>

Limited Seating—maximum 2 attendees per company/entity please

Best management practices from California case studies including:

- Specifications—Caltrans and others
- Low impact development for soil and water protection
- Reduced chemical and water use
- Improved vegetation management

Resources include:

- Local, regional, and international expert presenters
- Free copy of "Sustainable Sites" - Forrester Press, $100 value
-Book outlines sustainable techniques and specifications w/installation details

Sponsors:

STOPWASTE
at home • at work • at school

 zanker | rethink. reinvent. renew.

